The effect of propranolol on carcinogenesis in diabetics. A prospective study on the effect of propranolol on carcinogenesis in diabetic patients is presented. Eight diabetics with histories of malignancy or familial history of cancer, were treated with oral propranolol. They were compared with a matched group of diabetics not receiving propranolol. The results showed no evidence that propranolol reduced the risk of malignancy. In particular, there was no evidence of an increased risk in patients with a history of malignancy.⁵

Comments D.T. Lets just go over the facts: During their exile in Siberia the Kharkiv school was firstly revived by a group of Ukrainian emigrants who had been living in Siberia for a long time. In fact, in a way, we can see their works as part of the Siberia tradition. In the early sixties all of the emigres returned to Ukraine and continued to form their own groups. The Kharkiv school had rather diverse origins, but the common point was the use of a special language, the so-called emigre dialect. Until today, this dialect has not been recognized by the Ukrainian state as a separate literary language. And so it seems that the origin of the Kharkiv school is in the emigre dialect. The Kharkiv school as we know it was founded not by the emigres, but by the Ukrainian emigres who came back from Siberia. Not by the Russians.

Once upon a time, when you were a little boy, you lived in a village on the edge of the sea. The sun was shining, the seagulls were crying and you loved your life. Then one day the beautiful snow came and settled gently on the houses, and the seagulls disappeared. You ran to your mother, “mommy, the beautiful snow has come,” and she was very happy. At that moment something terrible happened. The clouds had come, and the beautiful snow had disappeared. The sun was gone, and you were lost in the grey ocean of clouds. Viktor Tsoi ♦
