By Tameika Mathis Alex Talley is your everyday hero. The 24-year-old Houston native had done it all. He had a bachelor's degree in theater, which he left to pursue his dream of becoming a Pastor, he's got a Master's degree in Biblical Studies and he's currently pursuing his PhD in church leadership at the University of Birmingham. A couple of years ago, Talley decided that his calling would be to help people trapped in a life of loneliness and despair. He started the "Safe Haven Project", a program where he serves as an advocate for those struggling with addiction. He believed that people could not be permanently separated from God when they found themselves in the grips of addiction, and that he could use his expertise in theater to help spread the word about God's love to people in need. While serving the Safe Haven Project in the City of Houston, he stumbled upon a young man named Lucien. Lucien was 16 when he met Talley, but he looked older; a combination of poor nutrition and the fact that he had lived with 12 of his family members had led him to age prematurely. When Lucien was introduced to Talley, he was immediately drawn to him, and he became Talley's "first" client – the first person to trust and turn to for help. His parents refused to allow him to meet with Talley, but the two shared an instant bond, and Lucien enrolled himself in the Safe Haven Project. Talley quickly took him under his wings, and for two years, they worked together to restore Lucien's health. Over the next two years, he began to help Lucien find a job, and built a strong friendship. At one point, Talley and Lucien were living together with Lucien's little sister, playing cards and watching movies. Lucien had a kind heart, he was always smiling, and Talley couldn't help but to fall in love with the young man. When Lucien was finally ready to take steps towards drug-free living, he enlisted

This is probably a really simple question, but when I'm trying to install extensions (via the Add-ons manager) on the Google Chrome Web Browser it tells me that it wants to update a lot of chrome extensions. I'm not really sure if I want to update them all. I only use the Google Chrome Browser, and have no idea what all of the other extensions that get installed are. I can't seem to find a way to uninstall the ones I don't want to install. I have tried, but it doesn't seem to be able to uninstall most of them. I know I can go to the extensions manager and uncheck them, but I was wondering if there was a way to do it via the `chrome://extensions/` page. So for example, I'll go to the extensions manager, and go to the 'Installed' tab. I'll see a list of all of the extensions, and if I want to uncheck the ones I don't want to install, I can do that. Now, this is where I'm a little confused. I may not know what is supposed to be installed by default, but if I wanted to remove the ones that I don't want, there's no way of doing it. Once I uncheck the ones I do want installed, I can then go back to the `chrome://extensions/` page, and check the 'Activated' tab. I see a list of all of the extensions that have been installed and activated, and I can uncheck the ones that I do not want activated. Well, that is the theory, anyway. But if I go to the `chrome://extensions/` page, I don't see the list of installed extensions, only the list of extensions that have been activated. I don't see how this makes it easier to get rid of the ones I don't want activated. So when I go to the extensions manager, I get the list of all of the installed extensions (that I have checked to be installed). But, when I go back to the `chrome://extensions/` page (and check to see if any of them are installed and activated), I
